

Pearl's Premium "No Mow" Grass Lives Up To Claims

By Jim Ruen, Contributing Editor

Pearl's Premium "no mow" type grass does what it promises. It grows slowly, then tops out and falls over without matting up. Four years ago, I seeded several plots in 2009. It was planted in very poor soil conditions; yet it emerged and still thrives.

One of the claims for the grass is that it seldom needs to be mowed or watered again, after it is established." Here again, we put it to its harshest test. The grass was left uncut until the end of July. At that time two plots were clipped and the remainder left to grow. Grass blades had grown as much as 15 in. in length.

A full month later, the clipped grass had recovered. However, it had grown out only a couple of inches, even though there had been plenty of rain. It's as slow growing as promised.

The sections left uncut have remained essentially unchanged since late July. The grass is no longer than it was then, and it still hasn't collapsed or matted.

Cut Pearl's Premium once or twice a season, or leave it alone throughout the season. Either way, it appears ideal for areas where a grass cover is desired, but a manicured look is not needed. Left to grow, it creates an attractive appearance, not wild and scraggly, simply eye-appealing mounds of long, green grass.

Pearl's Premium won the MassChallenge Award for innovations that can make positive societal change, and a Boston Museum of Science award for one of the three best inventions to come out of New England, although it grows in all 50 states,

This stand of "no mow" type grass, planted in poor ground alongside Ruen's driveway, had not yet been cut at the end of July when this photo was taken. It forms a good-looking meadow, only 3 to 4 in. high. Most of the grass was 14 to 15 in. tall but it falls over so, from a distance, it has an attractive appearance.

Photos show other examples of low-maintenance Pearl's Premium lawns in the middle of summer. You water to get the lawn established and, due to the 12-in. roots, it seldom or never needs to be watered again in the North. In the South may need supplemental water. If you cut it only once a month, it stands up as a low-maintenance, 3 to 4-in. high lawn.

having 300+ rave reviews by the experts and the media. If you cut it only once a month, it stands up as a low-maintenance manicured 3 to 4-in. high lawn.
